EDUCATIONAL SITUATION IN THE SOUTH.

Facts for Statesmen, Teachers, Preachers and Others.

In 1899-1900, the last year for which statistics are available in condensed form, the number of children of school age in the ten States south of the Potomac and the Ohio and east of the Mississippi, including Louisiana, was 5,645,164; the total population, 16,662,257. The total amount expended for public schools in these States was $14,358,201; the total value of public school property, $22,097,216.

The average amount expended for each child of school age in these ten States was $2.72. The average value of school property for each child, including houses, grounds and equipments, was $3.93, varying from $1.66 in North Carolina to $7.80 in Kentucky. This is an accumulation of school property equal only to 57 cents per capita of the entire population of North Carolina, and $2.86 in Kentucky. The average value of school property per capita for the ten States was $1.33. The total per capita expenditure for schools varies from 50 cents in Alabama to $1.45 in Florida, the average for the ten States being 86 cents. The average length of school term varied from 71 days in North Carolina to 120 days in Louisiana—about 100 days for the ten States.

The number of days of schooling actually given each child of school age varied from 22 in North Carolina to 52 in Kentucky. The average for the ten States was 43 days, only 3 days more than two months of 20 days each. The average annual salary paid to teachers in these States varied from $86 for males and $78 for females in North Carolina to $253 for males and $213 for females in Kentucky, the average for the ten States being about $175 for males and $150 for females. These figures include both city and county schools.

At this rate, how long will it take to educate the masses of the people of these States?

MODEL SCHOOLS EXHIBITION.

The Annual Exhibition by the Model Schools was given in the Tabernacle Tuesday night. No doubt the rain prevented many persons from going, but the entertainment was in no degree lessened because of the state of the weather. Had the night been fine and clear there would have been considerable difficulty in seating the crowd, that is, judging from the fine audience that was present. Every person seemed to enjoy himself, and a number of them pronounced this exhibition to have been the very best ever given on a like occasion. It is not too much to say that, if the teachers have acquitted themselves as well in their work during the year as the pupils of the Model Schools did on Tuesday night, they will have good reason to expect advancement in their classes all along the line, and to deserve the welcome "well done."

Don't Start Wrong.

Don't start the summer with a lingering cough or cold. We all know what a "summer cold is." It's the hardest kind to cure. Often it "hangs on" through the entire season. Take it in hand right now. A few doses of One Minute Cough Cure will set you right. Sure cure for coughs, colds, croup, grip, bronchitis, all throat and lung troubles. Absolutely safe. Acts at once. Children like it. "One Minute Cough Cure is the best cough medicine I ever used," says J. H. Bowles, Groveton, N. H. "I never found anything else that acted so safely and quickly." For sale by East End Drug Co.

Like a Drowning Man.

"Five years ago a disease the doctors called dyspepsia took such hold of me that I could scarcely go," writes Geo. S. Marsh, well-known attorney of Nacoma, Tex. "I took quantities of pepsin and other medicines but nothing helped me. As a drowning man grabs at a straw I grabbed at Kodol. I felt an improvement at once and after a few bottles am sound and well." Kodol is the only preparation which exactly reproduces the natural digestive juices, and consequently is the only one which digests any good food and cures any form of stomach trouble. For sale by East End Drug Co.

WONT FOLLOW ADVICE AFTER PAYING FOR IT.

In a recent article a prominent physician says, "It is next to impossible for the physician to get his patients to carry out any prescribed course of hygiene or diet to the smallest extent; he has but one resort left, namely, the drug treatment." When medicines are used for chronic constipation, the most mild and gentle obtainable, such as Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, should be employed. Their use is not followed by constipation as they leave the bowels in a natural and healthy condition. For sale by S. E. Welch, Jr.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON VIII, SECOND QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, MAY 25.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xiii, 43-52. Memory Verses, 46, 47—Golden Text, Acts xiii, 38—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1902, by American Press Association.]

43. Paul and Barnabas, speaking to them, persuaded them to continue in the grace of God.

Crossing from Cyprus to the mainland, they arrive at Perga, where John Mark left them and returned to Jerusalem. Thence they journey to Antioch, in Pisidia, and are found in the synagogue on the Sabbath day, and, being invited to speak, Paul begins at the exodus of Israel from Egypt and preaches unto them Jesus and the resurrection and through Him the forgiveness of sins. After the service many asked to hear those words again the next Sabbath, and as they followed Paul and Barnabas they urged them to continue in the grace of God.

44. And the next Sabbath day came almost the whole city together to hear the word of God.

The apostles had no doubt spoken to many through the week, and those who had heard the preceding Sabbath had not been quiet about the wondrous resurrection story and the consequent great redemption so fully and freely proclaimed. It became the talk of the town, and an immense congregation assembled not to hear the wisdom or the oratory of the apostles, but to hear the word of God.

45. But when the Jews saw the multitude they were filled with envy and spoke against these things.

Such manifest working of the Holy Spirit could not but provoke the adversary to envy and blasphemy. Compare Acts v, 33; vii, 54. If none of the religious people of a community is stirred to talk against the preaching, it is an evidence either that he is wonderfully in sympathy with Christ or that the preaching lacks salt (11 Tim. iii, 12; Col. iv, 6). There are not many who are willing to endure sound doctrine (1 Tim. iv, 3).

46. It was necessary that the word of God should first have been spoken to you, but seeing ye put it from you and judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, lo, we turn to the gentiles.

To the Jew first, then to the gentiles, was the principle acted upon in all apostolic preaching (Acts iii, 26; Rom. i, 16). Man has the power of receiving or putting from him this great gift of everlasting life which God has provided at such infinite cost.

47. I have set thee to be a light of the gentiles that thou shouldst be for salvation unto the ends of the earth.

Paul's commission was to bear the name of the Lord not only before the children of Israel, but before the gentiles (Acts ix, 15), and he quotes from Isa. xlix, 6, concerning Israel's Messiah, called the Servant of the Lord. While the mystery of the church is not clearly revealed in the Old Testament (Eph. iii, 5, 6), the calling of the gentile nations after Israel shall have been converted is an oft repeated fact, and yet Paul gathers from this passage something concerning his mission to the gentiles.

48. And when the gentiles heard this they were glad and glorified the word of the Lord, and as many as were ordained to eternal life believed.

The gentiles gave heed to the message, and by receiving the word of the Lord they glorified it and were made glad in Him whom they thus received. In this age not all are given to Christ, but all who are given shall come, and whosoever will may come, with the assurance that none who come will be cast out (John vi, 37; Rev. xxii, 17). This is the time of salvation for the elect church, after which shall come the salvation of all Israel and then of all nations.

49. And the word of the Lord was published throughout all the region.

This is the work and the privilege of every redeemed one, for it is written, "Let him that heareth say come." And if we have received the gospel for ourselves it is not for ourselves only, but we have been entrusted with the message that others through us may hear it also, and to all who have not yet heard we are debtors and should say, "As much as in me is I am ready to give them the gospel" (Rev. xxii, 17; 1 Thess. ii, 4; Rom. i, 14, 15).

50. But the Jews stirred up the devout and honorable women and the chief men of the city and raised persecution against Paul and Barnabas and expelled them out of their coast.

Was it for this the Spirit sent them forth? Did He know that they would be thus rejected and ill treated? Yes, perfectly did He know it all, and even our Lord Himself told them before He died that they would be put out of the synagogues and killed for His sake, and they must not be offended nor afraid (John xvi, 1, 2; Matt. x, 28).

51. But they shook off the dust of their feet against them and came unto Iconium. Compare chapter xviii, 6, and see their instructions in Mark vi, 11; Luke ix, 5. It is our glorious privilege to proclaim the glad tidings, to make known the love of God, to offer to all in His name eternal redemption through the blood of Christ, knowing that as we do so in reliance upon the Holy Spirit His word will never return to Him void.

52. And the disciples were filled with joy and with the Holy Ghost.

All that we are called upon to bear for the sake of Christ and His truth should be borne cheerfully, for He has taught us to be exceedingly glad and leap for joy under such circumstances (Matt. v, 10-12; Luke vi, 22, 23). We are told that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us; that our afflictions are light compared with His and but for a moment when compared with eternity.

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT.

Gems Gleaned From the Teachings of All Denominations.

All grace is found in the bosom of the Father.—Rev. Dr. Wilson, Methodist, Danbury, Conn.

A Wireless Message. A thought is the wireless message of soul to soul.—Rev. George H. Hepworth, Congregationalist, New York.

Progress in Spiritual World. The law of progress is just as much a law in the moral and spiritual world as it is in the natural and growth is sanctification.—Rev. C. J. Hall, Denver.

An Unworthy Church. The church that does not save people, and a great many people, is unworthy the ground on which it stands.—Rev. Dr. Warren S. Danley, Presbyterian, McKeesport, Pa.

What Salvation Means. Salvation means more than deliverance from sin and Satan; it means service. It means more still; it means sacrifice.—Rev. Dr. William J. Holtzclaw, Baptist, Atlanta, Ga.

The World's Brother. The pre-eminence of Christ consists, in the first place, in the fact that he is the one universal character. He is the son of man; he is the world's brother.—Bishop C. B. Galloway, Methodist, Washington.

The Equality of Men. The conflict of classes will never subside until the great principles of the equality and fraternity of men as taught by the Man of Nazareth are accepted and put into operation.—Rev. Bruce Brown, Christian, Denver.

Employing the Divine Hospitality. The union with God is more than a hiding place from the storms of life; it is a home for the soul, a permanent dwelling place. It is the constant enjoyment of divine hospitality.—Rev. Richard Hartley, Baptist, New York.

The Greatest Discovery. The earliest great achievement of the twentieth century is wireless telegraphy, but incomparably greater is the discovery of the way to send our messages to the very ear of God.—Rev. James J. Dunlop, Presbyterian, Boston.

Children of the Same Father. Religion teaches me that we are all children of the same Father, brothers and sisters of the same Redeemer and consequently members of the same family. It teaches me the brotherhood of humanity.—Cardinal Gibbons, Catholic, Baltimore.

Lessons of the Infinite. Everything in this beautiful world has a lesson of permanent and eternal good in it, and the mind and heart thrill with the sweetest emotions when they find the lessons of the infinite in the common things which we see and handle every day.—Rev. Alfred F. Smith, Methodist, St. Louis.

Simple, but Not Easy. Religion is simple, but not easy. It has the right to ask of every man that he shall give himself to it in the fullness of his power. Religion always begins, and it never begins in any other way, when a man comes to himself.—Rev. Dr. William J. Tucker, President of Dartmouth College.

Need of an Endless Life. There is no greater mistake than that we need only this world's lights to guide us through this world. Earth needs the solar orb to lighten and fructify it. Our souls need the power of an endless life to sustain them in their daily toils and troubles.—Rev. Dr. J. T. G. Nichols, Unitarian, Saco, Me.

Separating Chaff From Wheat. There is a cry going forth for a ministry which speaks with authority. Back of every true ambassador of Jesus Christ is the divine authority, or, if it be not so, the ministry is the most stupendous of all farces. The chaff of the pulpit must go; the wheat will remain.—Rev. Henry Irving Rasmus, Baptist, Chicago.

The Crown of Desire. If there be one thing more certain than another about human nature, it is this—that by itself it is incomplete. The soul of man cannot live without God. Wickedness is imperfection. Selfishness is sin. The crown of desire is the consciousness of the divine presence.—Rev. Dr. George R. Van De Water, Episcopalian, New York.

The Working Out of a Plan. We see a world crowded full of design, wheel within wheel, the most delicate adjustments of means to end. The plain man says, "Here is the working out of a plan, and a plan involves a wise planner." The philosopher can never overthrow that plain reasoning by any specious pleas.—Rev. C. P. Wishart, Presbyterian, Allegheny City, Pa.

Work a Form of Worship. It is my profound conviction that the evils of that system in the industrial world of the day which turns the worship of work into a mockery and a blasphemy will not be changed until its pathos has stirred the hearts of men and aroused them to realize that the mandates of religion extend over the six days of the week as well as over the seventh and that work is as much a form of worship as is prayer.—Rev. Dr. Henry Berkowitz, Hebrew, Philadelphia.

Crowned With Beauty. The soul that is crowned with the beauty of the Lord our God stands forth unchanged and unchangeable. Therefore adorn and make beautiful the doctrine of God our Saviour. Illustrate the Christian life in your beautiful character and career. Be a living sermon on the mount, clothed with flesh. Remember that Christian character represents the greatest achievement of the fine arts. The true Christian character must be as full of color as is the spring, as full of fruit as the autumn, as perfect in his purity as is the white cloud.—Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, Congregationalist, Brooklyn.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

Youth of Queen Isabella, the Friend of Columbus.

Every American boy should be interested in the history of the great queen of Spain who pawned her jewels to buy vessels with which to send Christopher Columbus out to discover the new world.

Isabella was born April 22, 1451, at Madrigal, Spain. Her father, King John, was king of Castile, then a separate kingdom, now only a province of Spain. She was named in honor of her mother, a princess of Portugal, who brought up her daughter very simply in the obscure village of Arevalo. At the age of eleven the little princess was betrothed to Prince Carlos of Aragon, who was cruelly poisoned. Other matches were arranged for her, but with great spirit the princess refused them and insisted on marrying Prince Ferdinand of Aragon.

Isabella was heiress to the throne, so her marriage was a matter of great importance to the country. October, 1469, after a romantic courtship Ferdinand was married to his sweetheart at Valladolid, Spain, and her brother, the king, dying, she was proclaimed queen of Castile Dec. 13, 1474. When, in January, 1478, Prince Ferdinand succeeded to the throne of Aragon, the two kingdoms were united, and the peace of the Spanish peninsula seemed assured. It was under the reign of Ferdinand that the Moors were expelled from Spain and driven back to Africa. In 1492, against the advice of the court, the queen pawned her jewels to help the needy adventurer, Christopher Columbus, whose discovery of a new continent was the glory of her land and reign. This good and wise queen died at Medina del Campo, Spain, Nov. 26, 1504.

A Simple Trick. One need not be an alchemist to make money, as the following trick will show: First pour clear water into a glass until it is half full; then throw a bright piece of money into the water and cover the glass with a plate. If the glass is now turned over quickly, the piece of money will be seen gleaming on the plate and a second piece will be seen swimming on the surface of the water.

It is a refraction of the rays of light which causes this curious illusion, for the moment the glass is restored to its original position and the water ceases to move the second piece of money disappears.

Game of Step.

In the game of step the ground is marked off by two parallel lines, a wide distance apart. One player, who is "it," stands on one of these lines, with his back to the other players, who start at the other line. The one who is "it" counts ten rapidly, during which time the other players approach his line. As he says "Ten!" they stand still in whatever attitude they may be at the moment. He turns his head quickly and calls the name of any player or players whom he sees moving. Any thus caught moving have to go back to the starting line and begin over, while the counter repeats the count of ten and the players again move forward. The object of the game is to cross the counter's line without being seen in motion by him. The last one over changes places with the counter.

Trifles. "Today," said pretty Dolly, as She opened her bright eyes, "I'm going to give my dear mamma A beautiful surprise. I hardly know yet what 'twill be, But I'll soon find a way, To do some unexpected thing To please mamma today. "I'm tired of doing little things. Why, any one can sweep And dust and wipe the dishes Or sing Evelyn to sleep. "I'm so glad thing I want to do, If I could write a book Or save the house from burning now, How pleased mamma would look." So after breakfast Dolly went And sat beside the fire, While mother cleared the table off And mended baby's tear. She wiped the dishes, made the beds And braided Dolly's hair, While Dolly sat and pondered long Within her easy chair. And so Miss Dolly dreamed and planned That busy morning through; She could not think of anything Quite large enough to do, And as she went to bed that night She really wondered why, When mother kissed her lovingly, The kiss was half a sigh! —Youth's Companion.

THE HOME.

Several persons have asked directions for whitewashing and how to mix the whitewash. Below you will find a few directions and formulas that have been tested and proved satisfactory.

WHITWASH FOR INSIDE.—Spanish Whiting, 4 pounds; white or common glue, 2 ounces; stand the glue in cold water over night; mix the whiting with cold water, heat the glue until dissolved and pour it into the whiting hot. Make of proper consistency to put on with a good whitewash brush. Be sure and sweep your walls free from dust and cobwebs. If you need more than above will make, use same proportions.

GOOD WHITWASH.—Good lime well slacked with hot water, cover the vessel to keep in the steam. When the lime is well slacked and cold, pass it through a sieve to take out all lumps, mix to the consistency you desire with skim milk, add for each gallon a small tablespoon of salt well dissolved, stir this in and it is ready for use. This will not rub off.

A GOOD CHEAP PAINT.—Whiting, 5 pounds; skimmed milk, 2 quarts; fresh slacked lime, 2 ounces. Put the lime in a stoneware vessel, pour upon it a sufficient quantity of the milk to make a mixture resembling cream; now add the balance of the milk, stirring well. Now crumble the whiting on the surface of the fluid, in which it will gradually sink. It must now be well stirred in or ground as you would oil paint, and it is fit for use. Apply this as you would other paints, and in a few hours it will be dry and ready for another coat. Put on as many coats as you need. If you will follow instructions and put this paint on with the same care as you would oil paints you will find it a good paint for little money and as durable as cheap white lead. If you wish any other color mix in any pigment dissolved in dilute alcohol, except green. Green must not be mixed with lime. The above quantity, which ought not to cost more than 35 cents, properly laid on will be enough for 500 square feet.—D.

PRIZES FOR HOME-DYED YARNS.

To revive the art of HOME-DYING wool and cotton, Berea College is offering a list of prizes for home-dyed cotton chain and wool yarn in yellow, green, red, black, brown and indigo blue, as follows:

For one cut number 400 cotton chain and 25 threads wool yarn, coarse enough for coverlet weaving and spun on hand wheel.

The dyes must be home made and not commercial dyes and the receipt used in dyeing must be given in writing with each color.

MISS JOSEPHINE A. ROBINSON, Berea, Ky.

Whooping Cough. A woman, who has had experience with this disease, tells how to prevent any dangerous consequences from it. She says: Our three children took whooping cough last summer, our baby boy being only three months old, and owing to our giving them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, they lost none of their plumpness and came out in much better health than other children whose parents did not use this remedy. Our oldest girl would call lustily for cough syrup between whoops.—JESSIE PINKNEY HALL, Springville, Ala. This remedy is for sale by S. E. WELCH, JR.

We promptly obtain U. S. and Foreign PATENTS. Send model, sketch or photo of invention for free report on patentability. For free book, How to Secure U. S. Patent, write to TRADE-MARKS. CASNOW & CO. OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Dangerous If Neglected. Burns, cuts and other wounds often fail to heal properly if neglected and become troublesome sores. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve prevents such consequences. Even where delay has aggravated the injury DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve effects a cure. "I had a running sore on my leg thirty years," says H. C. Harthly, Yankeetown, Ind. "After using many remedies, I tried DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. A few boxes healed the sore." Cures all skin diseases. Piles yield to it at once. Beware of counterfeits. ## THE SCHOOL.

KENTUCKY EDUCATORS And the Kentucky Educational Association, by Dr. Ruric Roark, Dean Normal Department State College of Kentucky.

It needs no second thought to see the duty of Kentucky educators towards the State Educational Association. Every profession—even every trade—has its own organization now, and a man's standing in his profession or trade is judged largely by his affiliation with the organization. A teacher can no more afford to miss the professional inspiration to be had at the annual meeting of the educational association than a lawyer or a physician, or a minister, or a journalist can afford to stay away from the gatherings of his fellows.

The rural teacher needs these meetings because he especially needs whatever will draw him away from his narrow round of duties and give him a broader conception of his work. The city teacher needs them, particularly, because she needs to find out that "there are others" who know how to teach and to think and to talk. The high-school man and the college professor need these meetings because they ought often to touch elbows with others in all ranks of the profession, on a floor where a man is taken for what he is—for what he can contribute to the general fund of thought.

In short the man who has not should attend the meetings of the State Educational Association that he may receive; the man who has should attend that he may give of his abundance. All are benefited, not only professionally but culturally and socially. The interchange of thought, the give and take of the short, sharp debates on the floor, the face to face talks, the social meetings, the forming of strong, new friendships and the firmer cementing of old associations, all combine to clear out old ideas and ways of thinking and doing, and implant new and vigorous ideas and give refreshment to the soul. There is not a teacher in the State so humble that he cannot help at these meetings, and not an "educator" so profound that he cannot gain something from the good Kentucky "mixing" that goes on there.

Then, too, it must be remembered that the meeting this year is to be held at Lexington, June 24-26. Lexington is the most easily accessible point in the State; the railroads promise very low rates.

Wants Others To Know. "I have used DeWitt's Little Early Risers for constipation and torpid liver and they are all right. I am glad to endorse them for I think when we find a good thing we ought to let others know it," writes Alfred Heinze, Quincy, Ill. They never gripe or distress. Sure, safe pills. For sale by East End Drug Co.

TERRIBLE EXPLOSION. "Of a gasoline stove burned a lady here frightfully," writes N. E. Palmer, of Kirkman, Ia. "The best doctors could not heal the running sore that followed, but Bucklen's Arnica Salve entirely cured her." Infallible for cuts, corns, Sores, Boils, Bruises, Skin Diseases and Piles. 25c at all Drugstores.

THE FARM.

FARM NOTES.

Nearly all the experienced growers of potatoes now favor level culture for the crop, especially if the season is dry. Level culture permits of better opportunity for destroying weeds, as well as providing a loose top soil as an effective mulch, which assists the soil in retaining and providing moisture.

On the same diet an animal at rest will fatten more readily than one that takes exercise. No animal should be allowed to lose flesh, as the loss of a pound in weight is equivalent to a loss of two, for the reason that an animal should gain instead of losing. There is also a loss of time when the animal ceases to make any gain in weight.

There are two diseases termed hog cholera, one affecting the bowels (the true cholera) and the other which attacks the lungs and known as swine plague. An animal may also have both diseases at the same time, but such cases are rare.

Wire-worms are known to cause much damage in cucumber and melon patches. It is claimed that if potatoes are buried about one foot apart and six inches deep around the vines the worms will leave the melons or cucumbers and feed upon the potatoes. In this way the worms may be caught and destroyed with but little labor.

When it is convenient to apply a solution of concentrated lye on trees dust them well with the wood ashes when the dew is on the branches.

As a remedy against cabbage worms mix a tablespoonful of red pepper, one of black pepper and one of ground yellow mustard with a pound of wheat flour. Once a week dust each cabbage with the prepared flour while the plants are moist with dew. A pound of flour will answer for dusting about 200 plants.

A meadow will yield four times as much food in bulk if made into hay as it will if pastured. On the other side, when pastured the cattle harvest the food for themselves and the young grass is more digestible.

As this is the season when the cow should give more milk because she can have the use of a pasture it is no reason why she should not be given an abundance of hay and grain as well. Pastures vary in quantity and quality of grass, and it is always good policy to examine the pasture field and its condition frequently, for should a cow fall off in her yield of milk she may not quickly come into full flow again.

RIPANS

Ripans Tablets hold their place as the supreme remedy which cures dyspepsia, indigestion, stomach, liver and all bowel troubles, sick headache and constipation. No other single remedy has yet been found since the twilight of medical history which is capable of doing so much good to so large a majority of mankind.

THE CARE OF ROADS

IMPORTANCE OF SELECTING A GOOD HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER.He Should Devote His Entire Time to the Work and Know All About Roadbuilding—Wide Tires Preserve Highways.W. Pierpont White, secretary of the Onondaga county (N. Y.) League For Good Roads, in speaking before the Utica chamber of commerce recently about roadbuilding said:

"In roadbuilding the main object is to get the greatest length of the best road for the least money. The best road will have the location which will give the best drainage and the easiest grades and will serve the most traffic.
The best road will have the design and construction which will give a perfectly drained bed of dry earth supporting a smooth and water tight surface. This will enable it to shed water with least delay, to endure frost with least change, to carry traffic with least wear, to carry heaviest loads with least effort, to carry light loads speedily and with least jolt. The best location and design of a road can only be made after a thorough survey and careful location by a civil engineer who has had experience in designing and building roads.

"The man who has charge of the roads in a town is called the highway commissioner. What kind of a man should we have as highway commissioner? We want a man who is free to give his entire time to the care of the roads from one end of the year to the other. Each town has upward of sixty miles of highway to be taken care of.
The New York Central railroad in the care of its four tracks between Albany and Utica, a distance of ninety-five miles, has a civil engineer and 350 section bosses in charge of 280 to 350 men in the summer and 175 to 210 men in the winter, all constantly at work keeping the roadbed free from water and the ditches open. The proposition which a highway commissioner must meet in the care of the roads of his town is exactly the same proposition that a railroad has to meet in the care of its roadbed.

"The highway commissioner must be a man who can start in the spring of the year with a plow, opening the ditches on each side of the road. This in a town of sixty miles of highways gives him a furrow 120 miles long to be opened at the melting of the snow in order to take the water away from the surface of the road. This work must be followed as soon as the earth

POOR WORK AND A POOR SURFACE.

is dry enough to handle by his team and the road scraper. The road should be made wide enough for two teams to pass easily and crowned to a sufficient height to throw the water easily to the ditches. Too high a crown produces ruts when the road is used. Too low a crown holds the water in the center of the road. The most satisfactory crown calls for a rise of six inches in the center of an eighteen foot road. This will throw the water fast enough to keep the road from getting soft and does not expose the road to rutting.

"The sluices in each town should be numbered and a record kept of them and the dates when repairs are made on them. Wooden sluices should be done away with and iron sluices or the sluices put in their place. The continued renewal of wooden sluices is a constant expense to the town, whereas the introduction of tile or iron sluices would soon provide the town with permanent sluicing, and very little expense would be incurred from year to year in their maintenance. The highway commissioner must see to it that the loose stones are removed from the highways at least once in thirty days, and a prudent man does it often.

"The highway commissioner should be an active, energetic man, capable of engaging and discharging men in his employ, capable of handling teams in the use of the road machines, capable of building a ditch so that he won't try to run water up hill, capable of figuring on masonry for culverts, capable of handling any small contract and able to lay out his work from year to year so that the roads can be constantly improved through the operating of a systematic plan of development. When you have a good highway commissioner, never let him out of office.

"It is worse than useless to create expensive and valuable highways to have them only cut to pieces by the use of narrow tires as now used for the hauling of heavy loads in this state. When you have got a good thing, it costs you money, and you must take care of it and change your methods to help maintain it. Wide tires are of the greatest value in preserving ordinary dirt roads. A state wide tire law should be passed, simple in its requirements, positive in its enforcement and going into operation two years from this date in order to permit every wagon user to have ample time to adapt his wagon tires to the new law in the interest of road maintenance."

SAVES TWO FROM DEATH.

"Our little daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs. W. K. Haviland, of Armonk, N. Y., "but, when all other remedies failed, we saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery. Our niece, who had Consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine, and to-day she is perfectly well." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery as to no other medicine on earth. Infallible for coughs and colds. 50c and $1.00 bottles guaranteed by all drugstores. Trial bottles free.

Man's Supreme Achievement.

A true and noble personality is a value beyond all pomp and circumstance, beyond all possession or power. A man's supreme achievement in human life is not the amount possessed, the thing done or the station occupied, but himself.—Rev. Dr. N. Luccock, Methodist, St. Louis.

CHAPTER II.

THE BLACK ROCK CHRISTMAS.

ANY strange Christmas days have I seen, but that wild Black Rock Christmas stands out strangest of all. While I was reveling in my delicious second morning sleep, just awake enough to enjoy it, Mr. Craig came abruptly, announcing breakfast and adding:

"Hope you are in good shape, for we have our work before us this day."
"Hello!" I replied, still half asleep and anxious to hide from the minister that I was trying to gain a few more moments of snoring delight. "What's abroad?"

"The devil," he answered shortly and with such emphasis that I sat bolt upright, looking anxiously about.
"Oh, no need for alarm! He's not after you particularly—at least not today," said Craig, with a shadow of a smile. "But he is going about in good style, I can tell you."

By this time I was quite awake.
"Well, what particular style does his majesty affect this morning?" He pulled out a showbill. "Peculiarly gaudy and effective, is it not?"

The items announced were sufficiently attractive. The Frisco Opera company was to produce the "screaming fury," "The Gay and Giddy Dude," after which there was to be a grand ball, during which the "Kallifornia Female Kickers" were to do some fancy figures, the whole to be followed by a "big supper," with "two free drinks to every man and one to the lady," and all for the insignificant sum of $2.

"Can't you go one better?" I said.
He looked inquiringly and a little disgustedly at me.

"What can you do against free drinks and a dance, not to speak of the high kickers?" he growled. "No," he continued. "It's a clean beat for us today.
The miners and lumbermen will have in their pockets $10,000 and every dollar burning a hole, and Slavin and his gang will get most of it. But," he added, "you must have breakfast.
You'll find a tub in the kitchen. Don't be afraid to splash. It is the best I have to offer you."

The tub sounded inviting, and before many minutes had passed I was in a delightful glow, the effect of cold water and a rough towel and that consciousness of virtue that comes to a man who has had courage to face his cold bath on a winter morning.

The breakfast was laid with fine taste. A diminutive pine tree in a pot hung round with wintergreen stood in the center of the table.

"Well, now, this looks good—porridge, beefsteak, potatoes, toast and marmalade."

"I hope you will enjoy it all." There was not much talk over our meal. Mr. Craig was evidently preoccupied and as blue as his politeness would allow him. Slavin's victory weighed upon his spirits. Finally he burst out: "Look here! I can't—I won't stand it! Something must be done. Last Christmas this town was for two weeks, as one of the miners said, 'a little suburb of hell.' It was something too awful. And at the end of it all one young fellow was found dead in his shack, and twenty or more crawled back to the camps, leaving their three months' pay with Slavin and his suckers. I won't stand it, I say!" He turned fiercely on me. "What's to be done?"

This rather took me aback, for I had troubled myself with nothing of this sort in my life before, being fully occupied in keeping myself out of difficulty and allowing others the same privilege. So I ventured the consolation that he had done his part and that a space more or less would not make much difference to these men. But the next moment I wished I had been slower in speech, for he swiftly faced me, and his words came like a torrent:

"God forgive you that heartless word!
Do you know— But, no; you don't know what you are saying. You don't know that these men have been clambering for dear life out of a fearful pit for three months past and doing good climbing, too, poor chaps. You don't think that some of them have wives, most of them mothers and sisters, in the east or across the sea, for whose sake they are slaving here, the miners hoping to save enough to bring their families to this homeless place, the rest to make enough to go back with credit. Why, there's Nixon, miner, splendid chap, who has been here for two years and drawing the highest pay. Twice he has been in sight of his heaven, for he can't speak of his wife and babies without breaking up, and twice that slick son of the devil—that Scripture, mind you—Slavin, got him and 'rolled' him, as the boys say. He went back to the mines broken in body and in heart. He says this is his third and last chance. If Slavin gets him, his wife and babies will never see him on earth or in heaven. There are Sandy and the rest too. And," he added in a lower tone and with the curious little thrill of pathos in his voice, "this is the day the Saviour came to the world."

He paused, and then with a little, sad smile, "But I don't want to abuse you."
"Do. I enjoy it. I'm a beast, a selfish beast!" For somehow his intense, blazing earnestness made me feel un-comfortably small.

"What have we to offer?" I demanded.

"Wait till I have got these things cleared away and my housekeeping done."

I pressed my services upon him, somewhat feebly, I own, for I can't bear dishwater, but he rejected my offer.

"I don't like trusting my china to the hands of a tenderfoot."

"Quite right, though your china would prove an excellent means of defense at long range."

It was doft a quarter of an inch thick, so I smoked while he washed up, swept, dusted and arranged the room.

After the room was ordered to his taste we proceeded to hold counsel. He could offer dinner, magic lantern, music. "We can fill in time for two hours, but," he added gloomily, "we can't beat the dance and the high kickers."

"Have you nothing new or startling?" He shook his head.

"No kind of show—dog show, snake charmer?"

"Slavin has a monopoly of the snakes."

Then he added hesitatingly: "There was an old Punch and Judy chap here last year, but he died. Whisky again."

"What happened to his show?"

"The Black Rock hotel man took it for board and whisky bill. He has it still, I suppose."

I did not much relish the business, but I hated to see him beaten, so I ventured, "I have run a Punch and Judy in an amateur way at the variety."

He sprang to his feet with a yell.

"You have! You mean to say it?
We've got them! We've beaten them!" He had an extraordinary way of taking your help for granted. "The miner chaps, mostly English and Welsh, went mad over the poor old showman and made him so wealthy that in sheer gratitude he drank himself to death."

He walked up and down in high excitement and in such evident delight that I felt pledged to my best effort.

"Well," I said, "first the poster. We must beat them in that."

He brought me large sheets of brown paper, and after two hours' hard work I had half a dozen pictorial showbills done in gorgeous colors and striking designs. They were good, if I do say it myself.

The turkey, the magic lantern, the Punch and Judy show, were all there, the last with a crowd before it in gaping delight. A few explanatory words were thrown in, emphasizing the highly artistic nature of the Punch and Judy entertainment.

Craig was delighted and proceeded to perfect his plans. He had some half a dozen young men, four young ladies and eight or ten matrons upon whom he could depend for help. These he organized into a vigilance committee charged with the duty of preventing miners and lumbermen from getting away to Slavin's.

"The critical moments will be immediately before and after dinner and then again after the show is over," he explained. "The first two crises must be left to the care of Punch and Judy, and, as for the last, I am not yet sure what shall be done. But I saw he had something in his head, for he added, 'I shall see Mrs. Mavor.'"

"Who is Mrs. Mavor?" I asked.

But he made no reply. He was a born fighter, and he put the fighting spirit into us all. We were bound to win.

The sports were to begin at 2 o'clock.
By luncheon time everything was in readiness. After lunch I was having a quiet smoke in Craig's shack when he in-rushed, saying:

"The battle will be lost before it is fought. If we lose Quatre Bras, we shall never get to Waterloo."

"What's up?"

"Slavin, just now. The miners are coming in, and he will have them in town in half an hour."

He looked at me appealingly. I knew what he wanted.

"All right, I suppose I must, but it is an awful bore that a man can't have a quiet smoke."

"You're not half a bad fellow," he replied, smiling. "I shall get the ladies to furnish coffee inside the booth.
You furnish them intellectual nourishment in front with dear old Punch and Judy."

He sent a boy with a bell round the village, announcing, "Punch and Judy in front of the Christmas booth beside the church," and for three quarters of an hour I shrieked and sweated in that awful little pen. But it was almost worth it to hear the shouts of approval and laughter that greeted my performance. It was cold work standing about, so that the crowd was quite ready to respond when Punch, after being duly hanged, came forward and invited all into the booth for the hot coffee which Judy had ordered.

In they trooped, and Quatre Bras was won.

No sooner were the miners safely engaged with their coffee than I heard a great noise of bells and of men shouting, and on reaching the street I saw that the men from the lumber camp were coming in. Two immense sleighs, decorated with ribbons and spruce boughs, each drawn by a four horse team gayly adorned, filled with some fifty men, singing and shouting with all their might, were coming down the hill road at full gallop. Round the corner they swung, dashed at full speed across the bridge and down the street and pulled up after they had made the circuit of a block, to the great admiration of the onlookers. Among others, Slavin sauntered up good naturedly, making himself agreeable to Sandy and those who were helping to unhitch his team.

"Oh, you need not take trouble with me or my team, Mike Slavin. Batchees and me and the boys can look after them fine," said Sandy coolly.

This rejecting of hospitality was perfectly understood by Slavin and by all.
"Dat's too bad, heh?" said Baptiste wickedly. "And, Sandy, he's got good money on his pocket for sure too."

The boys laughed, and Slavin, joining in, turned away with Keefe and Blaney, but by the look in his eye I knew he was playing Br'er Rabbit and lying low.

Mr. Craig just then came up.

"Hello, boys! Too late for Punch and Judy, but just in time for hot coffee and doughnuts."

"Bon! Dat's fuss rate," said Baptiste heartily. "Where you keep him?"

"Up in the tent next the church there. The miners are all in."

"Ah! Dat's so? Dat's bad news for the shanty men, heh, Sandy?" said the little Frenchman dolefully.

"There were a clothesbasket full of doughnuts and a boiler of coffee left as I passed just now," said Craig encouragingly.

"Allons, mes garçons. Vite! Never say keel!" cried Baptiste excitedly, stripping off the harness.

But Sandy would not leave the horses till they were carefully rubbed down, blanketed and fed, for he was entered him to do his best to win. Besides, he scorned to hurry himself for anything so unimportant as eating. That he considered hardly worthy even of Baptiste. Mr. Craig managed to get a word with him before he went off, and I saw Sandy solemnly and emphatically shake his head, saying: "Ah, we'll beat him this day!" And I gathered that he was added to the vigilance committee.

Old man Nelson was busy with his own team. He turned slowly at Mr.
Craig's greeting. "How is it, Nelson?" And it was with a very grave voice he answered:

"I hardly know, sir, but I am not gone yet, though it seems little to hold to."

"All you want for a grip is what your hand can cover. What would you have?
And, besides, do you know why you are not gone yet?"

The old man waited, looking at the minister gravely.

"Because he hasn't let go his grip of you."

"How do you know he's gripped me?"

"Now, look here, Nelson, do you want to quit this thing and give it all up?"

"No, no—for heaven's sake, no! Why, do you think I have lost it?" said Nelson almost piteously.

"Well, he's keener about it than you,
and I'll bet you haven't thought it worth while to thank him."

"To thank him," he repeated almost stupidly, "for?"

"For keeping you where you are over night," said Mr. Craig almost sternly.

The old man gazed at the minister, a light growing in his eyes.

"You're right! Thank God, you're right!"

And then he turned quickly away and went into the stable behind his team.

It was a minute before he came out.
Over his face there was a trembling joy.

"Can't I do anything for you today?"
he asked humbly.

"Indeed you just can," said the minister, taking his hand and shaking it very warmly, and then he told him Slavin's programme and ours.

"Sandy is all right till after his race.
After that is his time of danger," said the minister.

"I'll stay with him, sir," said old Nelson in the tone of a man taking a covenant and immediately set off for the coffee tent.

"Here comes another recruit for your corps," I said, pointing to Leslie Graeme, who was coming down the street at that moment in his light sleigh.

"I am not so sure. Do you think you could get him?"

I laughed. "You are a good one."

"Well," he replied half defiantly,
"isn't this your fight too?"

"You make me think so, though I am bound to say I hardly recognize myself today. But here goes." And before I knew it I was describing our plans to Graeme, growing more and more enthusiastic as he sat in his sleigh, listening with a quizzical smile I didn't quite like.

"He's got you, too," he said. "I feared so."

"Well," I laughed, "perhaps so. But I want to lick that man Slavin. I've just seen him, and he's just what Craig calls him, 'a slick son of the devil.' Don't be shocked. He says it is Scripture."

"Revised version," said Graeme gravely, while Craig looked a little abashed.

"What is assigned me, Mr. Craig?
For I know that this man is simply your agent."

I repudiated the idea, while Mr. Craig said nothing.

"What's my part?" demanded Graeme.

"Well," said Mr. Craig hesitatingly,
"of course I would do nothing till I had consulted you, but I want a man to take my place at the sports. I am refused."

"That's all right," said Graeme, with an air of relief. "I expected something hard."

"And then I thought you would not mind presiding at the dinner. I want it to go off well."

"Did you notice that?" said Graeme to me. "Not a bad touch, eh?"

"That's nothing to the way he touched me. Wait and learn," I answered, while Craig looked quite distressed.
"He'll do it, Mr. Craig, never fear," I said, "and any other little duty."

"Now, that's too bad of you. That is all I want, honor bright," he replied, adding as he turned away: "You are just in time for a cup of coffee, Mr.
Graeme. Now I must see Mrs. Mavor."

"Who is Mrs. Mavor?" I demanded of Graeme.

"Mrs. Mavor? The miners' guardian angel."

We put up the horses and set off for coffee. As we approached the booth Graeme caught sight of the Punch and Judy show, stood still in amazement and exclaimed:

"Can the dead live?"

"Punch and Judy never die," I replied solemnly.

"But the old manipulator is dead enough, poor old beggar!"

"But he left his mantle, as you see."

He looked at me a moment.

"What? Do you mean you?"

"Yes; that is what I do mean."

"He is a great man, that Craig fellow, a truly great man."

And then he leaned up against a tree and laughed till the tears came.

"I say, old boy, don't mind me," he gasped, "but do you remember the old varsity show?"

"Yes, you villain, and I remember your part in it. I wonder how you can even at this remote date laugh at it."

For I had a vivid recollection of how,
after a "chaste and highly artistic performance of this mediæval play" had been given before a distinguished Toronto audience, the trapdoor by which I had entered my box was fastened and I was left to swelter in my cage and forced to listen to the suffocated laughter from the wings and the stage wispers of "Hello, Mr. Punch, where's the baby?" And for many a day after I was subjected to anxious inquiries as to the locality and health of "the baby" and whether it was able to be out.

"Oh, the dear old days!" he kept saying over and over in a tone so full of sadness that my heart grew sore for him and I forgave him, as many a time before.

The sports passed off in typical western style. In addition to the usual running and leaping contests, there was rifle and pistol shooting, in both of which old Nelson stood first, with Shaw, foreman of the mines, second.

The great event of the day, however, was to be the four horse race, for which three teams were entered—one from the mines, driven by Nixon, Craig's friend; a citizens' team and Sandy's. The race was really between the miners' team and that from the woods, for the citizens' team, though made up of speedy horses, had not been driven much together and knew neither their driver nor one another.

In the miners' team were four bays, very powerful, a trifle heavy perhaps,
but well matched, perfectly trained and perfectly handled by their driver, Sandy had his long, rangy roans and for leaders a pair of half broken pinto bronchos. The pintos, caught the summer before upon the Alberta prairies, were fleet as deer, but wicked and uncertain.

They were Baptiste's special care and pride. If they would only run straight, there was little doubt that they would carry the roans and themselves to glory, but one could not tell the moment they might bolt or kick things to pieces.

Being the only nonpartisan in the crowd, I was asked to referee. The race was about half a mile and return, the first and last quarters being upon ice. The course after leaving the ice led up from the river by a long, easy slope to the level above and at the farther end curved somewhat sharply round the old fort. The only condition attaching to the race was that the teams should start from the scratch, make the turn of the fort and finish at the scratch. There were no vexing regulations as to fouls. The man making the foul would find it necessary to reckon with the crowd, which was considered sufficient guarantee for a fair and square race. Owing to the hazards of the course, the result would depend upon the skill of the drivers quite as much as upon the speed of the teams. The points of hazard were at the turn round the old fort and at a little ravine which led down to the river, over which the road passed by means of a long log bridge or causeway.

From a point upon the high bank of the river the whole course lay in open view. It was a scene full of life and vividly picturesque. There were miners in dark clothes and peak caps, citizens in ordinary garb, ranchmen in wide cowboy hats and buckskin shirts and leggings, some with cartridge belts and pistols; a few half breeds and Indians in half native, half civilized dress and, scattering through the crowd, the lumbermen with gay scarlet and blue blanket coats and some with knitted togues of the same colors. A very good natured but extremely uncertain crowd it was. At the head of each horse stood a man, but at the pintos' heads Baptiste stood alone, trying to hold down the off leader, thrown into a frenzy of fear by the yelling of the crowd.

Gradually all became quiet till, in the midst of absolute stillness

TO ALL WEARY HOUSEWIVES

THE NEW WAY.

who are using that back-breaking, dust-raising corn broom to sweep their carpets, we say, avoid this useless waste of energy and use a "Cyclo" bearing BISSEL, the finest carpet sweeper made.

It will brighten and preserve your carpets and make sweeping a pleasure instead of a drudgery. It will outlast forty brooms.
